Brand New Book  Print on Demand .Excerpt from Five Years Investigations in Apple Thinning Experiments in thinning apples have been carried on by the West Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station for the past five years. During this time one hundred and seventy-eight trees, including the varieties of Rome, Ben Davis, Baldwin, Delicious, and York Imperial, have been under experiment. When the work was outlined and started in 1912 it was hoped to include enough trees of each of the principal commercial varieties so that definite recommendations could be made from the results as to the advantages or disadvantages to be derived from thinning apples for commercial purposes. Not only was it sought to find the best time to thin, the proper distance apart to thin, and the accurate cost of thinning trees of different ages, but also to study especially the effects of annual thinning upon subsequent crops, to find out if trees could be made to bear every year, and thus to determine more accurately the actual profit or loss to be derived from thinning. During the past five years unforeseen difficulties and...
